

Steve Legge's Blues

Will you please stay home?

Is that too much to ask?

Will you please stay home?

Is that so hard a task?

When you could save someone's life

When you leave home you take your cough

As lethal as a mixed Molotov

Your sneeze cuts sharper than a butcher's knife

In going out you could steal a life

Begging is not my business or style

Yet I am begging you mile-on-mile

As the one you save from the virus grave

Is much more than just one more life

Kindness is the lodestar to inspire us

For the next victim of your winged virus

Cuts me deeper than a surgeon's knife

The nurse you kill might be my hero wife

Will you please stay home?

Is that too much to ask?

Will you please stay home?

Is that so hard a task?

The life you save by staying home

Remember it could even be your own
